

Too Much Homework

(6B Holly Lin)

Yesterday was Sunday. Calvin had a lot of homework to do, so he was as busy as a bee. That day, he was alone at home because his mum and dad went to visit his grandma. After a while, he began to feel bored.

"Oh! It is so boring!" Calvin complained. He thought, "Maybe I can have a rest." He began to feel thrilled and he turned on the computer to play shooting games with online playmates. He began to get more and more excited.

After three hours, Calvin kept playing computer games and he did not want to stop. And then, he felt the mouse was hot. Suddenly, the screen turned dark and some smoke came from the computer. "Oh, my god! What's happened?" he shouted. He thought, "What will dad and mum say? They will be very angry and I can never play computer." He called dad for help.

At last, dad and mum came home hurriedly. Calvin told them about the computer and he had not finish his homework. "Do your homework now and you can't play computer games for two months." Mum scolded him. From this incident, he has learnt that he should not play computer games for a long time.
